

Nelly Kladouri

Nelly Kladouri has studied Conservation of Antiquities and Works of Art at the Technological Educational Institute of Athens (BSc).

She completed her post-graduate studies in Cultural Heritage Materials and Technologies, University of the Peloponnese (MSc). During her studies she was the recipient of a scholarship awarded to the top-scoring student, by the University.

Currently, she is a PhD candidate at the University of Peloponnese in the Department of History, Archaeology and Cultural Resources Management, Laboratory of Archaeometry. Her main research interest focuses on the chemical analysis and provenance study of archaeological and historical metals.

She works as a permanent employee in the field of Conservation of Antiquities for the Ministry of Culture and Sports.